

Denver Police Protective Association
October 22, 2013

We all get frustrated. We get frustrated for ourselves and our fellow officer. However, you must be careful with whom you share your frustrations. At times, thinking you are helping, may only be hurting. Sharing information with the media can, at times, handicap an amicable resolution of an issue for the administration, the Mayor, and even this Association. Sharing information with the media can exacerbate an officer's discipline. Sure, we want to vent; we want to scream and tell the world of injustice. Please think before you do. Think ahead and think long term. Once the media makes it a story, the facts can be twisted, inaccurate, incomplete, misquoted, and the public has a misperception of the issue, the situation, and basically who we are and what we do. It's difficult but sometimes indeed it is true, patience is a virtue.

These E-mails are for DPPA members only.
You are receiving this E-mail because you have signed up for them.
The DPPA will not sell your E-mail address.